U.S. ARMY JOINT MUNITIONS COMMAND (JMC)

The Joint Munitions Command (JMC), a major subordinate command of the U.S. Army Materiel Command, manages the production, storage, distribution, and demilitarization of conventional ammunition for all U.S. military services.

What is the Joint Munitions Command?

JMC is the latest in a series of commands since World War II that has managed the nation's ammunition plants. Since 1973, those commands have been headquartered on Rock Island Arsenal, Illinois. Brig. Gen. Kristin K. French serves as the commanding general of the JMC. The headquarters on Rock Island Arsenal is responsible for munitions production (ammunition plants) and storage (depots) facilities in 12 states. JMC employs 22 military, more than 5,400 civilians, and 6,100 contractor personnel. Of these approximately 11,500 personnel, 681 work in the headquarters on Rock Island Arsenal. JMC has an annual budget of more than $4 billion.

What does the JMC do?

JMC provides bombs and bullets to America's fighting forces across all services, including all types of conventional ammo from bunker-buster bombs to rifle rounds. JMC manages plants that produce more than 1.6 billion rounds of ammunition annually and the depots that store the nation's ammunition for training and combat. JMC is accountable for $61 billion of munitions and missiles.
