

U.S. ARMY MATERIEL COMMAND

CG SENDS: COVID-19 UPDATE, 28 APR 2020

Army Materiel Command team,

For the past several weeks, I have challenged you to stay disciplined to our strategy of physical distancing. I know from personal experience this is a difficult challenge, so I want to say thank you for your diligence and discipline -- you are doing a great job, it is clearly making a difference!

For some of you, your surrounding environment may be changing (i.e.) countries, states and communities are adjusting stay-at-home orders and access to non-essential businesses. With that said, we have not changed our approach. We 'must' remain diligent and disciplined in our efforts to protect the workforce by preventing the spread of COVID-19 within our households, workplaces and communities.

Maintaining these standards requires self-discipline and personal accountability; these are decisions each of you must make. If we (collectively) stay focused on our priorities, stay strong, stay resilient, stay healthy -- victory will be ours.

Remember, take time every day to check on someone -- a family member, a co-worker, a friend -- it goes a long way!
